Lloyds — three changes worth investigating

What changed: four primary documents re-opened and short located passages appended, preserving historical evidence. This deepens specificity, not verified customer demand.

AI value realisation and operating controls

Internal AI delivery and the disclosed Google Cloud collaboration are alternatives to an external services mandate.

Unanswered buying question: Which deployed workflow has a customer-owned net-benefit baseline, risk owner and a delivery gap that existing teams/Google Cloud cannot cover?

Inspect hypothesis, evidence & next step →

Legacy decommissioning and migration benefit assurance

Cloud adoption is not application retirement. Internal platform teams or existing partners may already cover the work.

Unanswered buying question: Which named remaining application can be retired, who owns dependencies and what independently testable cost/control outcome will be accepted?

Inspect hypothesis, evidence & next step →

Wallet and Curve integration outcome assurance

Wallet launch intent is not verified completion, Curve integration architecture, supplier demand or a procurement process.

Unanswered buying question: Which wallet integration outcome remains unmet, what is Curve versus Group scope, and who can authorise an external delivery tranche?

Inspect hypothesis, evidence & next step →

Evidence strength: short company primary excerpts; no independent outcome corroboration, current supplier contract, buyer authority or external buying intent established.
